Date	March 25, 2008	Comments Here are some nice words from a friend who saw Mojo play at the Kingfish a few years ago - he has been out of town and saw my note about Charlie in my annual holiday letter: ----- "I am deeply saddened at the news of your drummer's passing. Oddly, of all the Mojo members, his face is the one which consistently, and at very odd moments, visits me in disconnected reverie. I was always fascinated by those strange tongue-poking grimaces he wore when in some sheer transport of intensity and concentration. At times it looked like someone tipping his ear to catch the quiet heartbeat of an unborn child, at rest and unawares in its mother's womb. He is missed. He will be missed. May his memory be a blessing..."

Date	March 19, 2008	Comments Dearest Allison and Family, I just met Allison the other night and learned of Charlie's death. I searched to find the information on Team Charlie as I had hoped to work too. Since I am unable to walk on May 3rd due to leaving for Alaska on the 5th, I will keep my eye on the next walk. Allison, my heart breaks for you - I do know your pain. I will visit Charlie's memorial

Comments Today, February 20, 2008, a discussion of drum ming, music and cystic fibrosis along with musical ability and intelligence in those with cystic fibrosis sprang up. So I sent along a link to the Charlie Stockley site, and a few comments of my own memories of Charley, and commented that his mother was Allison Stockley. Many responded on list that they were so happy to have the link. Let us hope that they, too, join me in signing in. Love to you all, reading this, Marion Rojas, Oakland, CA

Comments I enjoyed learning Charlie's Story. He sounds like a wonderful man. I just signed up to become an organ donor and asked everyone in my address book to do the same. God Bless.

Comments We all had a great time celebrating you yesterday Charlie! It was a real "Charlie day" with us in our orange shirts! Your spirit motivated so many who would have never taken on an event like a half marathon! I thought about you the whole time I carried your sticks! We miss ya, but will always remember you! We all took it up a notch for you and yours! The beat goes on!!
 Love, Lisa and Gregg

Comments hi i miss hearing murphy bark...at nothing really, and charlie calling her, murphy, murphy, until she stoped barking. but i assume he just wanted her to come sit by him and have a daddy hug the dog moment. also miss the music charlies always played while out in his yard while either, well, calling murphy, or puttering around doing yard work. the 1/2 marathon was fun this morning, although, i did poop out at about where we initially started. looked for you at the booth but apparently you were out getting coffee somewhere. i'll see you around here at some point soon i am sure. and thanks again for all the yummy tomatoes. charlies neighbor, joani....and the beat goes on

Comments Dear friends: PLEASE OPEN THE "pdf" FILE THAT APPEARS BELOW THESE "GUEST BOOK" FILES TO VIEW THE MANY COMMENTS LEFT BY FRIENDS AND PEOPLE WHO DID NOT KNOW CHARLIE during the time he was in ICU, after the embolization procedure accident, waiting for lungs, until about mid January. These early comments disappeared into the web somewhere, so Kyra Brown, his dear friend and webmaster, re-enteed them from some hard copies we had. Many hundreds more comments were lost because we did not have printed copies to re-enter. Especially around Charlie's 39th birthday, June 13, people wrote loving and helpful comments, but they are gone...out there in the place where only Charlie can read them now. The "pdf" takes a little while to load after you click on it, but it is worth it. We hope you will make a comment here, even a 4 or 5 word comment. You can never ever imagine how helpful and comforting it is to his family, friends and beloved Margie to read about the love and respect you had and have for our (and your) Charlie. Please e-ma

CommentsI miss you brushing me. I miss you throwing the frisbee into the water at Crissy Field for me to fetch. I miss you cutting my toenails. I even miss you brushing my teeth. But most of all I miss your strong, gentle hands stroking my back and behind my ears and hearing your car pull up to our house in San Francisco. And I miss Margie, too. I will never forget you. I go to sleep pretending you are petting me and Grandma tells me stories at night about when you were a little boy. I wish we had been together then, too. I just miss YOU. Your "beeeg dawg"

CommentsSorry the previous comments disappeared from the website for no known reason. The Amazing Kyra Brown, who has taken care of this website, is putting many of the ocmments back from last Dec. to Jan...which we had on hard copy. She has been so supportive of Charlie's family. To you out there who don't know this: I am always overwhelmed and comforted by your continuing friendship with my son, and each of you meant so much to him, his friends. Thank you so very much for expressing your feelings here. I read them often and...it helps. The void he left in our lives is unfillable...but the love and support from each of you is what we hang onto for some solace and strength to make it through each day. "And the beat goes on . . ." Gratefully, Allison
